APPLICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP

JILM'S ACTIVITIES

The Japan Institute of Light Metals (JILM) started as the then Light Metal Conference in October 1951 for the purpose of looking to the progress in science and engineering concerning the light metals as well as contributing to the industrial development, went through the reorganization to the present JILM in May 1965 and since has been providing a place for basic study of light metals in Japan as a group of the researchers and engineers concerned all this while.

The field the members belong to so widely covers the industrial, institutional and academic circles that JILM is endowed with the optimum condition for the place to promote the collaboration between industry and university.

JILM membership provides you the opportunity to enrich your knowledge, not only in your own speciality but also in the fields of others' domain, through group interaction with other energetic people in industry and academia by participating in the programs of JILM's technical conferences (which will be held in spring and autumn two times every year), symposiums, technical courses, workshops, committees and other meetings.

DUES AND WHAT THEY PROVIDE

Your membership grade will be assigned by the Admissions Committee based upon the information you provide on the Membership Application. In most instances member dues are ¥4,000 (grade B members; college students or postgraduates) and ¥8,000 (grade A members; non-student researchers or engineers). Besides these a special member due of ¥50,000 is levied from supporting corporations or parties.

Dues are payable immediately upon notification of election. The Institute operates on a fiscal year of April 1 to March 31.

You will receive:

Monthly LIGHT METALS magazine which features articles of technical interest to members and the profession. It is required, however, to pay the following amount as actual expenses of postage: ¥8,000/year in case of Air Mail, and ¥6,000/year in case of Sea Mail. (Please choose one. Either will do.)

Many JILM publications, such as Reports and Manuals, at discount!
